

Creating A Play-Based Intervention Plan

Be mindful that students will sometimes have their own goals to explore/discuss, so please be flexible.

1. What is the main identified goal for the student?

2. What do I want this student to learn today?

3. What do I want this student to build on from last session?

4. What do I know about this student?

5. What activity will empower and allow the student to explore this goal today?

6. How do I want to modify this activity to the student and/or goal today?

Be mindful that the discussion/activity continues to be tied in to what you want the student to learn that day.
